

Music Curriculum Statement Raleigh Federation Hub July 2020.

In the Raleigh Hub, we believe that the arts are vital in developing the child as a whole. The Arts support the delivery of an inspiring and enriching environment which gives children the best early education possible.

Intent

The National Curriculum for music aims to ensure that all children:

- perform, listen to, review and evaluate music.
- be taught to sing, create and compose music.
- understand and explore how music is created, produced and communicated.

In the Raleigh Hub, children gain a firm understanding of what music is through listening, singing, playing, evaluating, analysing, and composing across a wide variety of historical periods, styles, traditions, and musical genres. We are committed to developing a curiosity for the subject, as well as an understanding and acceptance of the validity and importance of all types of music, and an unbiased respect for the role that music may wish to be expressed in any person's life. We are committed to ensuring children understand the value and importance of music in the wider community and are able to use their musical skills, knowledge, and experiences to involve themselves in music, in a variety of different contexts.

Implementation

The music curriculum ensures children sing, listen, play, perform, compose, notate and evaluate. This is embedded in the classroom activities as well as the weekly singing collective worships, participation in various concerts and performances, and opportunities to learning of instruments.

The elements of music are taught in the classroom lessons so that children are able to use some of the language of music to dissect it, and understand how it is made, played, appreciated and analysed.

Access to whole class sets of instruments through the Music Hub brings the opportunity to try a variety of instruments such as brass, woodwind, strings and percussion. A rolling programme is currently being developed to ensure children have access to a wide range of instruments through out their time in school. Whole class or group lessons include an understanding of how to play the instrument and how to read and record music notation. They also learn how to compose, focusing on different dimensions of music, which in turn feeds their understanding when listening, playing, or analysing music. Composing or performing using body percussion and vocal sounds is also part of the curriculum, which develops the understanding of musical elements without the added complexity of an instrument. In addition, children learn to follow a conductor and to conduct each other which gives an understanding of ensemble work.

Through the musical program Charanga, teachers are able to produce inclusive lessons for all children to access the musical curriculum in a fun and engaging way, further promoting a love of learning. Children throughout the school have opportunities to learn instruments such as the recorder, ukulele and guitar to build upon their own prior musical knowledge.

In addition, music clubs and choir are led by members of staff at varying times throughout the year. During the Autumn Term children perform in a variety of residential settings and to a range of audiences. The Annual Arts Exhibition is often a time to showcase new work or for individual musicians to showcase their talents.

Impact

Whilst in school, children have access to a varied programme, which allows them to discover areas of strength, as well as areas they might like to improve upon. The integral nature of music and the learner creates an enormously rich palette from which a child may access fundamental abilities such as: achievement, self-confidence, interaction with and awareness of others, and self-reflection. Children are able to grow in confidence and improve their self-esteem as a result of performing alongside others. Music will also develop an understanding of culture and history, both in relation to children individually, as well as ethnicities from across the world. Children are able to enjoy music in as many ways as they choose – either as listener, creator or performer. They can dissect music and comprehend its parts. They can sing and feel a pulse. They have an understanding of how to further develop skills less known to them, should they ever develop an interest in their lives.

Music in the Early Years:

From an early age, children at the Raleigh Hub are encouraged to explore and play with a wide range of musical instruments, as well as being provided with opportunities and encouragement for sharing their thoughts, ideas and feelings through a variety of activities in music. All children are encouraged to explore music through singing songs, making their own music and experimenting with changing them to create their own melodies.
